Welcome to PlayOnside

As PlayOnside is closing a season, and preparing for a new, PlayOnside is looking to improve and expand its reach.

With an increasingly stable and secure financial situation, we decided to utilize the immense pool of talent within our local community, and put out job application for young local leaders wanting to improve their coaching and leadership skills. And there was no lack of qualified applicants.

One of the key objectives of PlayOnside, is gender equality and the empowerment of girls and women. With almost half of the children participating in our program being girl, we have identified the need for good female role models for the young girls. So when we recieved applications from well qualified female candidates like Yadanar Oo and Aye Mya, we were very excited.

Yadanar Oo is the wife of PlayOnside Coach Coordinator, Pyae Sone, and a close friend of everyone in PlayOnside. She has helped out the organization as a volunteer at many occations, and has extensive teaching experience. Her energy and enthusiasm will be a great impact on the PlayOnside program.

Aye Mya is a young ambitious woman with an impressive CV. She graduated the Brighter Future program in Mae Sot, an English program offering teacher training and community development.

After graduation from Brighter Future, she worked one year as a logistic assistant and assistant physiotherapist in Star Flower Center, an educational program for children with special needs. She has also worked one year as a finance assistant at Burmese Migrant Workers Education Committee, (BMWEC).

She has also graduated and passed the GED-exam at Minmahaw School, an English Immersion program in Mae Sot.

With experience in the development sector, both in finance and in youth development, she is going to be a great resource for PlayOnside. She might be lacking coaching and football experience is well compensated with all her other skills.

KAWKAREIK SUMMER SCHOOL

Time for English class with Pyae Sone!

Normally April is a holiday period for PlayOnside. Amazing great skillful The schools in Mae Sot are closed and PlayOnside stop the training at the different migrant learning centers. However, this year we decided to skip our holiday, do something different. We packed our bags, filled the car with balls, cones, books, pens and crayons, and set off to the heart of Karen State, for a one-month summer school.

“Kawkareik Summer School” was an English immersion course that involved during five weeks, 120 students from three different villages. Under the values of integration, gender equality and respect, students had the opportunity to learn English through a wide variety of subjects.

For projects of this scale, a good preparation is of the outmost importance. Our project manager for this project was Seint Phoung Hgeet, and before the start of the school, he went several times together with Laura to the village, and organized with the village leaders, the head masters, the military and the local communities to set up the school in advance.

The main topic of the Summer School was environment. This is a very big issue in these communities where especially the sudden use of plastic and the lack of knowledge and resources to process it after its use leaves rice fields, roads and rivers full of this toxic material.

“The PlayOnside Summer School was an amazing experience. I made many new friends, learned new things and had a lot of fun! Actually, I didn't think school could be this fun!”

Every day and through the different subjects, students had the chance to analyze the different problems about the environment, the reason why they must protect it and actions that they can take to improve this situation.

The regular subjects included math, science, football, meditation, dance and music all carefully prepared to encourage a participatory and inclusive learning environment. We believe in the need of developing the creativity of the students, encouraging teamwork, debate and discussion, and promoting critical thinking.

Lessons were prepared in order to promote these principals. Participation, group activities and presentations were the core of the lessons. Even though the summer class only lasted for five weeks, the most of the students showed a drastic improvement over the course of the school.

Students experienced how to learn while having fun. In most of these villages, the teaching methods are based on repetition and memorization. Students doesn't have any room to share their opinions, to debate and to find and show their potential and skills.

Every day finished with fun games on the field focusing on teamwork and collaboration. And of course a lot of fun!

Through the variety of subjects we had the chance not only to keep the attention but also to give offer the students the opportunity to show their best skills. Some of them, for example, showed an amazing talent in Math when others were great at Music or any other subject. This way of learning, brings confidence to the students allowing all of them to find their best abilities.

Leadership was also an important part of the Summer School. Each group had three leaders in charge of different aspects of the school (cleaning, water, class leader). Through these commitments, students understand that they are also an important part of the school as well as learning how to organize themselves.

The summer school was a great experience, both for the students and for PlayOnside. We really hope to be back already next year to continue showing examples of a different type of educational approach.

PARTNERSHIP WITH KAVLI TRUST

PlayOnside is thrilled about continuing the collaboration with Kavli Trust.

Kavli Trust is a Norwegian foundation functioning as the sole owner of the dairy product company Q-meieriene and other Kavli businesses in Norway, Sweden, Finland and Great Britain.

Profit from these companies, not used to cover operating expenses and business development goes to the Kavli Trust, a trust that awards funds to good causes within humanitarian work, research and culture.

In 2017, Kavli Trust supported 78 projects in 20 different countries, and one of these projects receiving the support of Kavli, was PlayOnside.

We are therefore delighted to announce that Kavli Trust and PlayOnside have agreed to extend our collaboration for 2018 and 2019. For PlayOnside the financial support from a significant international donor like Kavli Trust, is of great importance, and we are proud that they want to continue their support of our work and philosophy.

PlayOnside has over years impressed us with their dedication for working with marginalized youth and children on the Thai/Burma border. Football can be a powerful educational tool, and PlayOnside utilize this in a way we in Kavli Trust are very happy to support.

COACHING TRAINING WITH THE CHELSEA FOUNDATION

Chelsea FC is one of the major football clubs on the international scene. The former champions league winner from 2012 is a household name for everyone with the slightest interest in this beautiful sport.

PlayOnside were therefore delighted to be invited to Bangkok by the Chelsea Foundation, to participate in a two-day coaching training. Even though the context, equipment and facilities differs a lot from how we experience football in the migrant communities in Mae Sot

, there is always something to learn, and especially from the very best.

We travelled with most of the team to the capital, excited to learn new methodologies and new coaching techniques. Over the course of the weekend, we got some valuable inputs and suggestions regarding improvements of our lessons, but mostly the trip was a confirmation that we are doing things in the right way.

Over the years, we have gained a lot of experience, both as a team and as individual coaches and even though our approach slightly differs from the approach of Chelsea Foundation, we are in general approaching the lessons in similar ways.

PlayOnside is always trying to connect with the best in our field, and this is one connection we are looking forward to working together with in the future.

So who knows? Maybe next year the head coach of Chelsea FC, Mr. Maurizio Sarri, can come to Mae Sot and help us further develop the defensive structure of the New Wave Small Girls team.

FUND RAISING EVENTS IN SPAIN AND NORWAY

Above

The Galvan-family is the organizer of the monthly second-hand market in Madrid.

With the program ever expanding, it is important for us to continuously try to attract new financial partners and new sources of income.

Most of our assets come from Norway and Spain, and Ole and Javier took the opportunity to travel to their respective native homelands to establish new connections, and participate in different fundraising events. In Madrid Spain we have friends arranging a monthly second hand market, where all the profit from the sale goes to PlayOnside. This is a very welcome source of income, and as the market is steadily growing, so is the income generated from it. We are lucky to have so good friends so passionate about PlayOnside, that they are willing to do this for us.

Also in Norway, we had different fundraising events. Friends arranged a fundraising concert with Burmese food where all the profit generated went to PlayOnside. We also had a very successful summer market selling traditional food and second-hand items, which generated a substantial amount of income for PlayOnside projects.
